A Walking Tour: Shanghai

Synopsis

Shanghai is China's most cosmopolitan city and it is a fascinating blend of old and new. Visitors can find everything from charming art deco style buildings and traditional Chinese architecture to some of the world's tallest skyscrapers. Once called the Paris of the East, Shanghai is once again bustling with new developments up along the Bund and in the Pudong area. The walks featured in this handy volume will enable readers to appreciate Shanghai's heritage and have a better understanding of its built environment.

Gregory Byrne Bracken is from Ireland and is a Fellow of the International Institute of Asian Studies at Leiden University in the Netherlands. He has a Ph.D. from the Architecture Faculty of the Technical University of Delft, also in the Netherlands, where he got his Masters of Science Degree in Urbanism (graduating cum laude) in 2004. He received a Diploma in Architecture from Bolton Street College of Technology, Dublin and a Bachelor of Science Degree in Architecture from Trinity College Dublin, both in 1992 (graduating with Distinction in Thesis). Prior to undertaking postgraduate studies in the Netherlands, Dr Bracken worked as an architect in Bangkok and Singapore, travelling extensively throughout Asia. He is the author and illustrator of the other books in the Walking Tour series, namely Singapore, Shanghai, Hong Kong and Kuala Lumpur (this last title was co-written with his sister Audrey Southgate). He is married and lives in Amsterdam.
