David Woodroffe is a professional illustrator and paper engineer. His book credits include The Complete Paper Aviator and The Complete Book of Origami Animals.

What I really love about this color-by-number book is that the color chart is a flap that folds out from the back cover of the book - no more flipping from the page I am coloring to the inside front cover to find out what color #5 (or any other number!) is supposed to be - its right there, folded out while I am coloring. This simple feature really adds to the relaxing benefits of coloring! And I like the pictures too ;-)

A great book but only a few landscapes, the rest are animals, flowers and designs and such. The paper is pretty good quality. I did not use gel pens or markers so don't know if it would bleed through. The numbers were also very easy to read.

Great book covering many subjects to color. Using my set of 'Marco Raffine' coloring pencils I was able to match all the colors easily. I especially like that the colors are easy to tell apart, unlike quite a few other color by number books on the market. The color chart folds out from the back cover making it convenient to refer to. I highly recommend this book.

I'm a big fan of this series!! It's the same creator (not just the same publisher) as mindfulness. If you look at the authors of each book by the same publisher, there are differences. This color palette and creator/author match "mindfulness," which is also an awesome book. I have a hard time relaxing while coloring if it's not color by number, and these are some pretty darn awesome color by number books. They're easily my favorite. I wholeheartedly recommend them!!!!

I really enjoy tropical scenes to color like this book contains. They really are calming to the people who color them. If you haven't discovered that coloring in coloring books are not just for kids, do try it and see for yourself how relaxing it can be to remove stress. I live alone, and I am an artist. It helps me pass the time. sells a lot of adult coloring books that are just perfect for me to color. I am happy with my purchase, and I do recommend that you try them for yourself to see if it is something you will enjoy too.

Very nice illustrations but the lettering is very light so I can only do this in bright light. Good product. Good price.

There are lots of pictures in this book with one-sided pages. There are at least a half dozen scenes that look beautifully realistic. My husband walked by when I was finishing up the sunset scene and commented that it looked like an original oil painting. My only complaint is that you can see the numbers underneath the lighter colors. I have a couple of finished pictures on my cubicle wall at work and lots of people comment on how pretty and elegant they look.

This is one of my favorite color-by-number books because it has a good variety of subjects to color.
