A hip hop icon joins forces with the best-selling author of The 48 Laws of Power to write a bible for success in life and work living by one simple principle: fear nothing.

Curtis James Jackson III (born July 6, 1975), better known by his stage name 50 Cent, is an American rapper. He rose to fame with the release of his albums Get Rich or Die Tryin (2003) and The Massacre (2005). Both albums achieved multi-platinum success, selling over twenty-one million copies combined. He is the author of From Pieces to Weight: Once Upon a Time in Southside Queens (S&S, 2006). He lives in New York. Robert Greene is the author of three bestselling books: The 48 Laws of Power, The Art of Seduction, and The 33 Strategies of War. He attended U.C. Berkeley and the University of Wisconsin at Madison, where he received a degree in classical studies. He has worked in New York as an editor and writer at several magazines, includingÂ Esquire, and in Hollywood as a story developer and writer. Greene has lived in London, Paris, and Barcelona; he speaks several languages and has worked as a translator. He currently lives in Los Angeles.

Most books are written to help you cope with life as it should be. Robert Greene's books are written to smack you in the face with reality, they coach you on how to deal with life and people as they are. Knowing this distinction can mean the difference between a life filled with fantasies and disappointments, and one that is victorious and accumulates true power - influence that carries the weight of reality. Ignore Mr. Greene at your own risk.

Great book! A lot of the current self help genre skirts around the issues that raw fear, uneasiness and anxiety generates. This book tackles it head on and explains that fear can be a trap that no amount of extra reading, positive thinking or trite phrases will solve. I have never seen a book that clearly explains the impact of this inner fear and how it clouds your judgment and generates avoidance as a form of coping. Kudos to Mr. Greene and Mr. Jackson for openly discussing and analyzing this problem and, more importantly, providing a step by step blueprint on how to move your life forward.

My favorite "self-help" book. It's short and to the point: be fearless. The examples given are likely not going to be anything you have ever encountered unless you are someone with 50 Cent's background, but Robert Greene is there to explain how those experiences are applicable to everybody else. It's a great book!

Robert Greene is considered The Godfather of Mastery psychology for a reason this book literally changed me it's not exactly something that teaches you how to be Fearless with instructions it's deeper than that. It's like it reads to you to where you will understand in your own self how to become Fearless one of my top three books ever written next to Art of War the Bible and Deep and Simple by Bo Iozoff Awesome read, You should it for yourself. Makes think about what's important in your life. I take as a well lesson, can't worry about the things that are part of life that we don't have any control of but do what's important. Mind, body, and soul. I recommend this book to every person that it's afraid of living life. My rating it's simple this book will change your thinking and make you start living.

This is the most inspirational book I have ever read! I can't really even describe how I feel about this book; there are so many POSITIVE aspects of it. The main thing I can say is that it kicked me out of a four year slump, where in my business I had been just coasting off of my success and not really reaching for it anymore. After even several pages, I found myself inspired, like I was when I first started my business. I believe this book is best read SLOWLY, giving you time to implement the wisdom in your daily life, before moving to the next chapter. I have even found that I sometimes read only a few paragraphs, or one story, and that is enough to boost me for the entire day! It really is that good. I always love Greene's references to past figures, and his depth of knowledge about his "characters". With that said, I am also surprised by how I have come to respect, and dare I say "idolize" 50 Cent? The moves he made to get where he is, and the attitude it took to get him there are fascinating. I can't believe the price I got this book for the Kindle edition... under four dollars was a complete steal. This truly is my favorite book; the best I have read in my life.

An excellent read for motivation, I recommend it to those who are open minded and not afraid to look at life from a different stand point or those who find themselves in similar situations and searching for an out. Although this is not a guaranteed formula to be successful its very informative on how to develop the habits of the successful and insight on their character traits that have been the determining factors on how their lives unfolded, good or bad. Robert Greene and Curtis Jackson create a unique work of art by identifying the connections between power struggles in the streets, politics, and the corporate world. Ladies and Gentlemen... The 50th law.

Got this for my partner and he has read it twice already!
